1977

1977
Lincoln School
Providence, R.I.

With thanks and love we dedicate this yearbook to Angeline Duffy whose sincere friendship and devotion has made her an invaluable part of the class of 1977.

Nothing that was worthy in the past departs; no truth or goodness realized by man ever dies, or can die; but is all still here, and recognized or not, lives and works through endless changes.

Thomas Carlyle (1795-1881) from his essay on Sir Walter Scott, published in 1838.

Class of '77, you have done much to restore a sense of joy, an appreciation of good work, and a friendly, cooperative relationship with your elders. In doing so, you both rejuvenate your school and bear witness to the truth of Carlyle's observations.

Through whatever changes may occur, may you each continue to discover truth and goodness, and may you recognize and choose that which is worthy.

Best wishes to you all.

Let me share the road with you,
Farer by the way,
You seem to know this path;
Oh, take me where the light shines,
Through the cold grey mist of the waters,
Found deep in the wells of your eyes
Which hold so much pain and sorrow.

And you ask why he has left you
To stand out in the rain
With no one by your side.
And you are perched in the tree tops
With nails in your hands and your feet,
Crying despair throughout the world,
But never in the pain of defeat.

And here you have saved my life
From the wrath of the ives and the robbers
Which lurk this hard beaten-path
As the Future days grow harder.

"The best thing for being sad," replied Merlin, beginning to puff and blow, "is to learn something. That is the only thing that never fails. You may grow old and trembling in your anatomies, you may lie awake at night listening to the disorder of your veins, you may miss your only love, you may see the world about you devastated by evil lunatics, or know your honour trampled in the sewers of baser minds. There is only one thing for it then - to learn. Learn why the world wags and what wags it. That is the only thing which the mind can never exhaust, never alienate, never be tortured by, never fear or distrust, and never dream of regretting."

It is the vice of a vulgar mind to be thrilled by big-ness, to think that a thousand square miles are a thousand times more wonderful than one square mile, and that a million square miles are almost the same as heaven. That is not imagination. No, it kills.

Some say when they are in voice
And tossing so as to scare

I shall have less to say,
But I shall be gone.

They were representations of people I dearly loved, yet they knew these people were gradually fading from me and that, in time, all I would have left would be vague feelings - but sharp photographs. So I tossed them out. My memory fades, I know. But I prefer pictures made by me, and not by Kodak with silver nitrate."

 Be not too hard when he's sold or bought for he must manage as best he can.
 Be not too hard when he blindly dies, fighting for things he does not own.

Taking Leave of a Friend
 Blue mountains to the north of the walls,
 White river winding about them;
 Here we must make separation
 And go on through a thousand miles of Dead Grass.

Mind like a floating white cloud,
 Sunset like the parting of old acquaintances,
 Who bow over their clasped hands at a distance
 Our horses neigh to each other as we are departing.

Marie Sarrasin

"What is REAL?" asked the rabbit one day when they were lying side by side. "Does it mean having things that buzz inside you and a stick out handle?"

"Real isn't how you are made," said the skin horse. "It's a thing that happens to you."

"Does it hurt?" asked the rabbit.

"Sometimes," said the skin horse, for he was always truthful. "When you are Real you don't mind being hurt."

"Does it happen all at once, like being wound up," he asked, "or bit by bit?"

"It doesn't happen all at once," said the skin horse. "You become. It takes a long time. That's why it doesn't often happen to people who break easily, or have to be carefully kept. Generally, by the time you are Real, most of your hair has been loved off, and your eyes drop out, and you get loose in the joints and very shabby. But those things don't matter at all, because once you are Real, you can't be ugly, except to people who don't understand."
